Fiction Writers or Wannabe's

Inkers Digital Conference Courses

(Fee)

You may not be interested in the fiction craft courses but if you're thinking of self-publishing, you might be interested in the marketing and business courses from the Inkers Digital Conferences available at <https://www.inkerscon.com/>

Alessandra Torre Inkers

If you're interested in self-publishing your first fiction novel, checkout the free Facebook group Alessandra Torre Inkers.

Gallup Strengthsfinder

If you've ever suspected you might be your own worst enemy, the Better Faster Academy works through the Gallup Strengthsfinder to figure out how your particular stack of strengths can help and can hinder your progress. For free you can check out the Better-Faster Academy here and the Quitcast with Becca Syme on YouTube. It's designed for writers, but lots of corporate types have taken the Strengthsfinder, especially when it was Clifton Strengthsfinders. High 5 Test (free alternative)

Alexandra Sokoloff's Screenwriting Tricks for Authors Course

Those of you with a novel wanting to get out of you may check out Alexandra Sokoloff's Screenwriting Tricks for Authors course on YouTube. Thanks to lockdown, her course is free on YouTube.

Photoshop Badassery for Authors

The course in my round-to-it is Photoshop Badassery for Authors taught by Regina Wamble. It teaches word people how to design marketing graphics such as book covers, for both paper and digital, and bookmarks, etc. These days, an advantage to self-publishing is making changes, and a major way to "refresh" a book is to give it a new, updated cover. (Enrollment is currently closed)
